THESES RESPONDENTIS.

TH. I. Licet vocabula plene synonyma in aliqua lingua haud temere statuenda sint; nulla tamen talia existere qui urgent, nimis agunt præcipitanter.

TH. II. Non incommode olim vir magnus pronuntiavit; ratio Dogmaticorum redarguit temeritatem, natura Scepticorum.

TH. III. Egregie vir acutus dixit; qui explicare non instituit quod incomprehensibile est, sed fines modo nosse studet ubi illud incipiat, & ad illud usque progredi nititur; is amplissimum humanæ sapientiæ campum vindicat.

TH. IV. Quamvis nostri non ita pridem antiquarii Etymologicis suis nimium tribuerint argutis; non tamen nulla omnino hujus studii ratio in gentium cognitionibus indagandis est habenda.

TH. V. Ut nulla morum præcepta, si vel præstantissima fuerint, & optimo ordine summaque arte explicata, puerilibus animis satis profunt, si illi, quibus incumbit horum agere curam, ipsimet suis actionibus commendent, se virtutis, quam commendant exercitium negligere; ita prudentissima omnino est admonitio JUVENALIS; maxima debetur puero reverentia.

TH. VI. Quatenus Deus, utpote Numen optimum, cum naturis a se creatis paterne agit; concedimus quidem Leges Naturæ paternæ posse dici consilia; sed mera esse aut commode dici consilia, ut nonnulli statuerunt, merito negamus.

TH. VII. Ad summum cum splendoris tum utilitatis latissime patentis fastigium scientiæ ægerrime evehi posse existimamus, nisi libertas, cuius instituto publice privatimque profuturo tantopere necessaria, concessa ipsis fuerit ac conservata.

TH. VIII. Ad progressum cognitionis humanæ attendentes, facile persuademur, per ipsam rei naturam fieri aliter non potuisse, quam ut Poësis, ætate, non modo cæteris literis liberalibus, sed etiam eloquentiæ profæ, antecederet.

TH. IX. Gustum, quem dicunt, tam in singulis hominibus, quam totis Nationibus varium esse & fuisse, ab experientia edocemur; quam tamen varietatem, usu, etiam Politico respectu, non carere, facili perspicitur negotio.
