

WHEN HORSES CHALLENGE TRACTORS

A showcase of local events in European Cooperation Day
2012, 2013 and 2014

European Cooperation Day is a communication campaign aiming to promote territorial cooperation in Europe to the general public through the organisation of local events. The purpose of this publication is to present some of those events held during 2012, 2013 and 2014.

This initiative takes place every year on 21 September. It is performed by cooperation programmes in the EU and neighbouring countries, coordinated by the INTERACT Programme and supported by the European Commission, European Parliament and Committee of the Regions.

Website: www.ecday.eu
Contact: interact@ecday.eu

The INTERACT Programme led the concept and production of this publication in cooperation with the European Commission - DG Regio and territorial cooperation programmes in Europe and neighbouring countries.

INTERACT is co-financed by the European Regional Development Fund (ERDF). It supports territorial cooperation between regions of the EU and is the hub for exchanging information and good practices among cooperation programmes. INTERACT also supports cooperation programmes at the EU's external borders.

ABOUT EUROPEAN COOPERATION DAY

Where could you find a horse racing a tractor, people swimming from one country to another, and a concert in a cave underneath a national border? At one of the many events celebrating European Cooperation Day!

What is European Cooperation Day and when does it take place?

European Cooperation Day is a celebration of regions working together. It is based on the organisation of events to engage people in the local community and show how cooperating across borders improves life in and around Europe. Local events take place across Europe and neighbouring countries around the 21 September each year.

Who organises the local events and what are the events like?

Interreg and ENPI programmes and projects organise local events aiming to put territorial cooperation in the spotlight. Bike rides, project fairs, circus performances, the possibilities are endless!

Who coordinates this initiative?

The Interreg programme INTERACT coordinates this campaign with the support of the European Commission, European Parliament and Committee of the Regions. •

Interreg programmes were created by the EU to reinforce cohesion, reduce disparities between regions and encourage optimal economic development. They do so by funding projects in a wide range of thematic areas – from culture to environmental protection. Some Interreg programmes are typically between EU member states (ETC). Other Interreg programmes are between one EU member state and one pre-accession country to the EU (IPA CBC). ENPI CBC programmes are based on similar principles and contribute to creating an area of shared prosperity and good relations between EU member states and their neighbours.

SHARING BORDERS, GROWING CLOSER

Does a bird know when it has flown over the border between France and Spain? Does a river change its course when it flows from Austria to Slovakia? Problems that we face nowadays –pollution, viruses, unemployment, storms, ageing population– are not limited by borders. Our ways of dealing with these problems should also overcome borders. That is why territorial cooperation is an essential tool for Europe in efficiently addressing common challenges by bringing regions together to face them.

Territorial cooperation in the European Union is about striving for more balanced development, bringing countries together and strengthening the economy. It is about sustainable practices that protect the environment and improve social conditions. By working together towards these goals, countries also avoid duplicating efforts and resources. Cooperation between territories allows for strategic and cost-efficient responses to threats that face populations on both sides of the border.

For 25 years the European Union has supported Interreg and funded cooperation projects that work to improve our daily life. Transport, education, energy, health care and social inclusion are just a few of the many topics that cooperation projects deal with. These projects are carried out by local and regional institutions, universities, companies and research institutes. By pooling resources, exchanging knowledge and sharing good practices, cooperation projects improve the quality of life of people throughout Europe and beyond.

European Cooperation Day is an opportunity to discover the benefits of territorial cooperation in Europe –from creating jobs to improving public safety. It is also a chance to bring communities together and for people to get to know their neighbours. It is a way to help regions share borders and people grow closer. •

EVENT HIGHLIGHTS

The first three celebrations of European Cooperation Day resulted in over 500 local events in more than 30 countries in and around Europe. This book highlights some of those great events over the past three years.

Local events are about presenting the results and benefits of cooperation through Interreg and ENPI funded projects to local communities. This includes a thematic project showcase in Luxembourg, field trips in Slovenia, a project fair in Norway and many more unique events.

Moreover, local events also raise awareness about the presence of territorial cooperation and its importance to everyday citizens. For instance, an education day in Poland, a flash mob in Serbia, a film festival in Finland...

Organisers of local events, mostly programme and project staff, have shown a high level of creativity during the first three editions and come up with engaging events for all ages.

Showcasing the benefits of cooperation across borders through European Cooperation Day makes the work of the EU tangible and captures the attention of people in local communities.

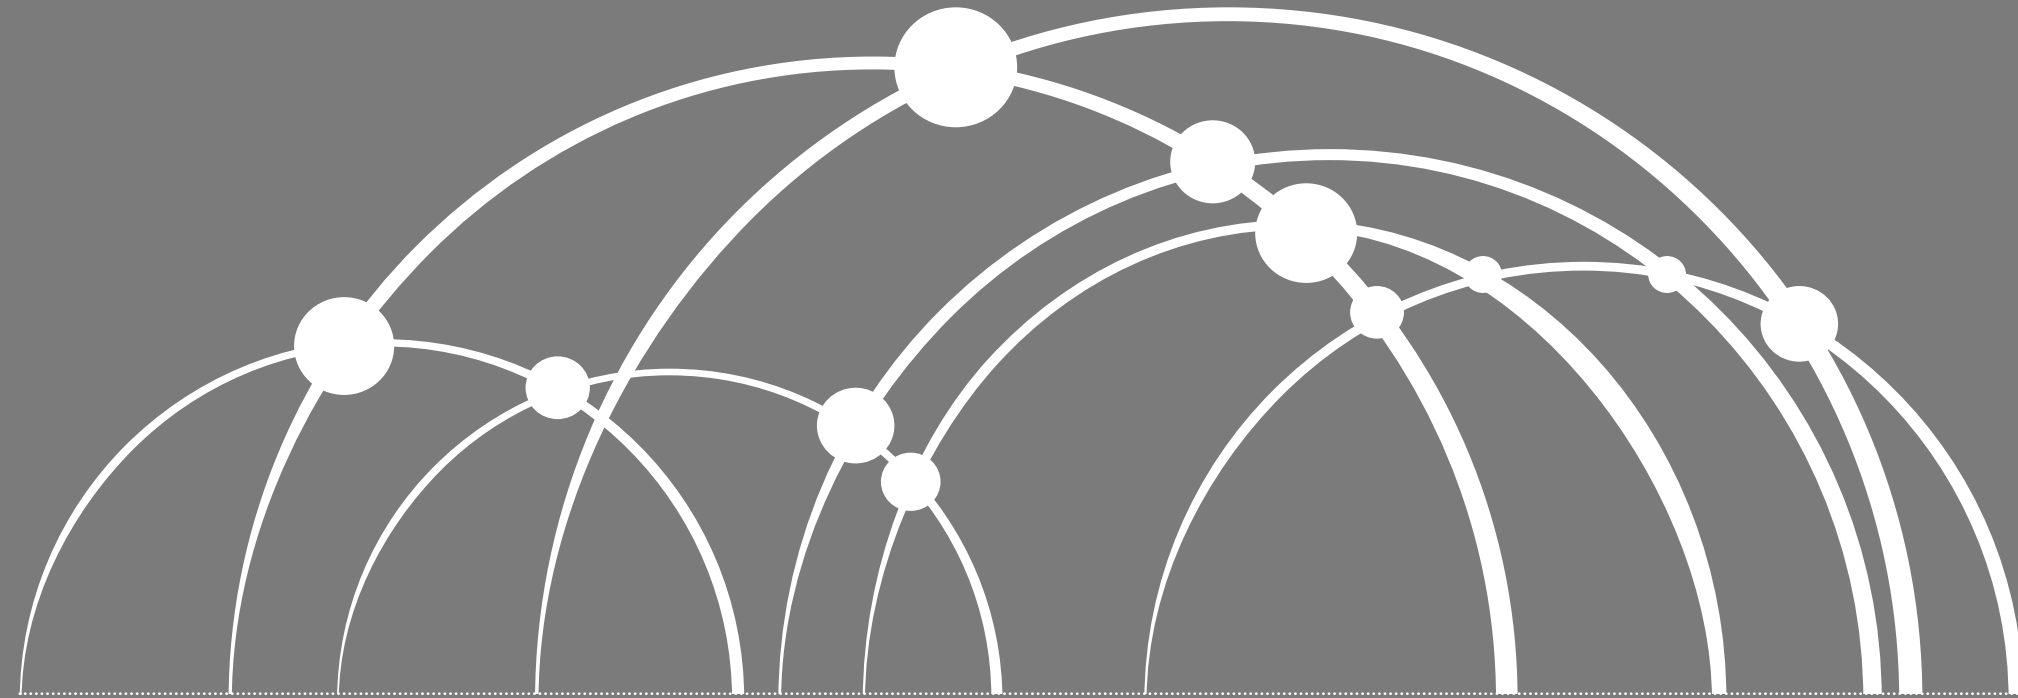

This publication pulls together an array of successful events organised in different geographical locations in Europe and its neighbouring countries. The common denominator among them is cooperation, learning and fun across borders! •

LOCAL EVENTS 2012

280 local events were organised in 35 countries in the first edition of European Cooperation Day.

RUNS AND RACES

Along with an interactive project fair, a race was organised in two different Lithuanian cities close to the borders in order to celebrate the benefits of territorial cooperation. The race in particular was exceptionally unconventional and involved a Lithuanian žemaitukas-breed horse, a Belarusian tractor 'Belarus', a Polish 'Maluch' car, a Latvian 'RAF Latvija' ambulance and a Russian 'Volga'. Guess which one won! •

BUS TOUR

The then EU Commissioner for Climate Action, Connie Hedegaard, was one of the participants of a bus tour showcasing projects funded by Interreg Öresund-Kattegat-Skagerrak. With 'pit-stops' around the Öresund, the goal was to showcase territorial cooperation projects on both the Danish and Swedish sides. The projects are pioneering examples in the fields of energy and environment. •

ENVIRONMENTAL ACTIONS

Journalists from local and regional media from Poland, Belarus and Ukraine were invited to take part in the 'Cross-border Forum'. It was an opportunity to get familiar with the latest projects funded by the organiser as well as to contribute to the integration of the media from the border regions. Environmental activities took place during the event as part of one of the projects in development. •

GRAFFITI ARTWORK

A large mural was graffitied during the event 'Cooperation with colour and music'. Participants included professional artists, kids and students. The final work was displayed outside of the Larnaca International Airport until the end of December 2012 and viewed by thousands of people. The event also included live music during an evening concert performed by a Greek band at Larnaca's beach. •

ONLINE ACTIVITIES

Meet your Neighbours! was a pilot initiative to connect two schools in Ireland and Wales. This activity aimed to foster understanding and knowledge of Ireland and Wales amongst Irish and Welsh school children through classroom activities. On the occasion of European Cooperation Day, two schools of Ireland and Wales met via videoconference to look at cooperation projects carried out by the two countries. •

ORCHESTRA CONCERT

One of the most remarkable attractions in the Aggtelek National Park is the Baradla Cave, which is the largest in Hungary and reaches over the Slovak border. In this magnificent space the Hungarian Symphony Orchestra played a classical music concert in celebration of European Cooperation Day. The audience of over 900 people enjoyed an array of philharmonic pieces by both Slovak and Hungarian composers. •

PROJECT FAIR

Some of the outcomes and findings of EU projects were exhibited during a conference that took place in Norway. Projects showcased in the fair covered fields such as sustainable mobility, innovation, research and development, transport and so on. The main goal was to show how transnational cooperation can make a difference when successful projects continue working as thematic clusters. •

QUIZZES AND GAMES

Dozens of kids participated in an afternoon event full of activities where they had the opportunity to take quizzes and play games about Europe. A storytelling exercise kicked-off the day, followed by a workshop on cooperation in Europe. In addition, the organisers held a small fair showcasing some of their projects. A European food tasting rounded off the event together with a concert performed by a multilingual band. •

WATER RESCUE TRAINING

At this European Cooperation Day event, children came out to the Lipno Dam to learn about water safety and how Austrian and Czech water rescuers are working together to save lives. The rescue teams, which are part of a cross-border project, presented the equipment and skills needed to perform a water rescue. The children then saw the rescue teams in action when they performed a demonstration rescue in the water. •

LOCAL EVENTS 2013

173 local events were organised in 32 countries in the second edition of European Cooperation Day.

PROJECT PRESENTATION

The role of mountain passes in cross-border cooperation was explained in an open-to-the-public dissemination event in the city's theatre. Three flagship stories coming from EU-funded projects were presented in order to highlight the relevance of territorial cooperation. In parallel, a market was set in the main square including typical agricultural, food and beverage products from the area. •
